BUTTERFIELD WELLS FARGO STAGE STATION
Near Denver, Colorado.

From information obtained by Mr. Bernal Wells, Squad Leader, it was found that this old log stage station was probably built circa 1860, or before, by the Cawker family. This log house served as one of the many stage stops on the Wells-Fargo-Butterfield State Route between Denver and El Paso. The original house was purchased from Mrs. Cawker, June 8, 1864, by Mr. Levi Booth. In 1881, or 1882, it is believed additions were made and the present siding placed over the original logs.

The house is now in possession of The Working Land Co..
